Current Comment By R. H. K.

The opinions (if any) expressed herein, are not necessarily those of The Campbell Press.

This day last week I stepped off the curb and nearly drowned before the coast guard rescued me. This morning I nearly froze to death on my way to the office. Well, a bit of chill peps one up, y'know—at least that's what the middle-westerners and easterners say on frosty mornings, just to kid themselves into thinking they like it. However, as the sun crawls slowly towards its zenith, everything brightens perceptibly, and, while it's not exactly hot at noon-day, our situation is much better than that of the Russians who have been frozen fast to their ice flow for the past eight or nine months.

You can readily see that I am not to be intimidated by the California State Chamber of Commerce.

Boake Carter's pungent remarks anent the far eastern situation, voiced in a broadcast this week, were very apt indeed, and bore out my contention, columnized the first of the year, that the American people would surely be prize saps to become overly alarmed over the reverses suffered by Standard Oil in China. Mr. Carter observed that the entire American investment in China would not exceed the nation's annual cigaret bill, and that that was pretty small potatoes to fight about. The eminent Boake, of course, uttered his convictions in language more polished than any I employ; but the thoughts are beef off the same joint.

On the "University Explorer" program, also this week, a well-known student of political economy of the University of California, said, in effect, that it is sometimes advisable to fight to preserve peace. Citing the current upheaval in the Orient, the learned Ph. D. outlined what might be accomplished by a show of concerted force, with probably never a shot fired: The combined fleets of America, Britain, and France could easily enforce a complete embargo against Japan, and Japan, deprived of the necessities of both life and "death," could quickly be brought to time. The commentator asked the Doctor what Germany and Italy would be doing toward helping out the third member of their alliance, and the answer was: "Nothing." The reasons: Germany's lack of resources would preclude any action to aid Japan; Italy has its hands full in Ethiopia and Spain. Well, that sounds logical enough, and it would very probably work; particularly if Russia were also to join the embargo. (It is a well-established fact that Russia has no love for the little brown brothers, anyway.) Admitting, then, that the Japanese invasion of China could be halted in this manner, and the slaughter in Spain stopped the same way, why isn't the scheme put into practice before it is too late? Why, indeed! Well, I think it's because the "rules" of intrigue among European and British diplomats say: "Now, boys, we'll fix this up all hunky-dory—so that everybody is satisfied—but we'll let the United States start the ball a-rolling, and we'll leave them holding the bag." And the United States, having held the bag in one of the biggest "snipe hunts" ever organized for the edification of suckers on this earth, and having a faint idea of the aims of the aforementioned diplomats, says, to their proposals, simply, "Nuts to you, gentlemen!"

"Porgy and Bess" Coming To S. J.

Dr. H. D. Cramer Is Director of New Student Infirmary

Dr. Harold D. Cramer, Stanford Freshman physician, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Cramer, has been appointed director of the new student infirmary of the University of Idaho at Moscow, and will leave the later part of March to enter upon his new duties the first of April.

Dr. Cramer is the first full time physician at the new $118,000 infirmary. He will also teach classes in hygiene. The infirmary has 30 beds and includes examining rooms and laboratories, with all of the very best and most modern equipment. All the health work of the university will be taken care of in the infirmary.

Dr. Cramer received his medical degree from Stanford and served his internship at the San Francisco hospital, followed by a period of forced inactivity, and then took his present position at Stanford.

Dr. and Mrs. Cramer visited in Moscow on their return trip from the east where they accompanied the Stanford basketball team during the Christmas holidays. Both the doctor and his wife were very enthusiastic about the new infirmary at that time. They will reside in Moscow but not on the campus. As there is no summer session at the college the Cramers will return to Campbell for part of their summer vacation.

Mrs. Rose Hanger, Mrs. J. D. Blaine, Hostesses At Tea

The commodious country home of Mrs. Rose Hanger was opened Monday afternoon for a valentine silver tea for which a large group of ladies assembled to enjoy the occasion.

The tea was one of a series being given by the Ladies Aid of the Methodist church. The hostesses for this event were Mrs. Hanger and Mrs. J. D. Blaine.

Paper hearts decorated the rooms and serving table, and candy ones ornamented the refreshments, with dainty napkins completing the valentine motif.

The aid society is meeting today at the home of Mrs. M. E. Purmort.

Entertains for Newcomers

On Friday afternoon Mrs. D. H. Cramer entertained a group of the younger women, to introduce Mrs. L. Ben Howard of Rincon avenue and Mrs. Norman Pratt, Alvie avenue and Third street, recent comers to Campbell, whose husbands are members of the faculty of San Jose State college. Mrs. Pratt is a sister-in-law of Dr. Harold Cramer, and both families were former residents of Palo Alto.

Grouped around a cheery grate fire, the time was spent in informal conversation, during which buffet refreshments were served.

In addition to the honor guests present were Mesdames John P. Duncan, David A. Sanders, George Smith, Jr., and the Misses Rachel Paradling and Helen Stray.

130's, Unlimiteds Beat Washington

By Don Martin

Centerville, Feb. 16.—Campbell high's league leading 130 and unlimited basketball teams continued their march to the championships by defeating Washington high of Centerville here last night.

In the opening minutes of the 130 game, Washington swished three baskets to gain an early 6-0 lead over Campbell. Then Coach Ralph Noddin's quint got hot and went to town, chalking up 16 points before the first half ended. Mitchell Lobrovich made 10 of Campbell's points.

The second period was nip and tuck with Washington staging several rallies in attempts to even the score. However, they did not succeed in overtaking the locals when the final bell sounded Campbell was on the long end of a 31-22 count.

Forward Lobrovich starred with 18 points. Kurasaki scored 9 and Franks 4. Emerson tallied 12 for the losers.

After being defeated by Mt. View in their last S. C. V. A. L. game, Campbell's unlimiteds came back to decisively conquer the Washingtonites. Early in the contest the locals took command and were leading 18-9 at half time. In the second half, the boys from the Orchard City hit the hoop for 15 more points and final score was Campbell 33, Washington 16.

Farley and Borg were high point men with 15 and 14 points, respectively.

The Campbell-Santa Clara game scheduled for last Friday was postponed because the Campbell gym floor was flooded with water. The roofing paper of the gym was raised by the strong wind and the rain came through the roof. The game will be played Feb. 23, according to an announcement by Coach Noddin.

Service Club Meets With Mrs. C.W. Toy

The charming home of Mrs. C. Wesley Toy on Williams road was further enhanced with bouquets of Japanese quince, winter iris and rose tinted stock effectively arranged in the hall and living room for the meeting of the Women's Service club Wednesday.

A dainty buffet tea was served in the dining room, the table graced with an unusual arrangement of violets and red camellias. The hostesses were Mrs. Toy, Mrs. C. F. Smith, Mrs. W. R. Morgan, and Miss Eleanor Corbett.

The guests were entertained with a cello solo, "Pilgrim's Chorus" (Tannhauser) played by Martha Jane Bohman, and piano solos "Smoke Gets In My Eyes" and a Sonata by James Rambo.

Mrs. E. R. Kennedy was named chairman for the annual guest tea which will be held in the library hall in March.

The community committee was instructed to investigate some reported needs of the Boy Scout building on North Third street.

House Movers On Job Today

The Agnes Benefiel house on South Central which was recently acquired by the Prune and Apricot Growers, was sold to Mrs. Carl Graf and today traversed Campbell avenue and North Third street to come to rest upon a lot owned by Mrs. Graf.

This leaves the ground upon which the house had stood available for the erection of a $25,000 addition to the association's Plant No. 1, on adjoining property.

This addition was authorized last week.

Honoring old settlers of Santa Clara valley and those of the Campbell community in particular, local people and out-of-town friends will gather at the grammar school auditorium next Tuesday morning to observe the 44th annual Old Settlers day and Washington's birthday.

Opening of the celebration will be marked by a musicale from 10:30 to 11 a. m. Those who plan to attend are urged to be in their seats promptly, as the doors will be closed at 10:30 sharp. The entire musical program features a group of able entertainers, all of this community.

At 11 o'clock the general program will be opened, the principal speaker being Rabbi Joseph Karsesh, whose subject will be, "Democracy's Answer to Tyranny."

During the mid-day intermission, luncheon will be served in the school cafeteria. Tickets will be on sale in the corridors.

The afternoon program, commencing at 1:30, is to be under the auspices of Yugoslav Napredak club and Slavonic Alliance District No. 6, Andrew Livacich, chairman. Other items of entertainment include a baseball game at 2:30, and a basketball game in the high school gymnasium at 3:30.

At 7:45 o'clock the grammar school auditorium will be the scene of the customary evening show which concludes the observance. This year, except for a group of selections by the Kiwanis quartet, the entire program will be staged by pupils of the grammar school who, with several of their teachers, have been rehearsing diligently what promises to be an intensely interesting duo; an operetta, "Land of Dreams Come True," featuring pupils of the four lower grades, and a "Pageant of California History," staged by the pupils of the four upper classes. The program is sponsored by the Kiwanis club, Ira Abbott, chairman.

Local Dryer To Enlarge Capacity

The Campbell Co-operative dryer which proved so successful and satisfactory to its grower members last season, will be enlarged for the 1938 crop, as decided at a meeting this week. This was the information given by G. K. Shrader, manager of the Prune and Apricot Growers association with which the dryer members are allied.

The capacity of the plant will be augmented by a double-tunnel dehydrator, according to present plans, and the warehouse extended to cover the dehydrator.

Burchfiel Talks At Lunch Club

Dr. Cecil Burchfiel, head of the Santa Clara county health department, outlined the work of his division of the county government, which he illustrated with charts and statistics, at Tuesday's Kiwanis meeting.

His figures showed that this county expends the very small sum of 26 cents per capita for disease prevention, while the average for the United States is 88 cents, with many communities expending as much as $2 or more, the idea being that it costs much less to prevent illness and disease than to have so many cases requiring prolonged medical attention or hospitalization.

Dr. W. I. Merrill was unavoidably absent so there was no program chairman. Next week that office will be filled by Ross Trowbridge who will present Sheriff George Lyle who will discuss the duties of his office.

P.T.A. Observes "Founders Day"

Founders day at Campbell Union High school was well attended, despite the storm, Wednesday.

At half past one o'clock the study group met in the dramatic room with Mrs. M. H. Farnham as their leader, her topic being, "Can the Home and School Co-operate in the Welfare of the Child?" The next meeting of the study group will be at the home of Mrs. F. O. Bohnett, 34 North Union avenue, at 1:30 o'clock Friday afternoon, Feb. 25. Those who are interested and wish to attend, phone Mrs. A. Jurras, Ballard 4021-J, or Mrs. Frank Blair, Campbell 254-J. Mrs. E. A. Howe will lead the next meeting.

Following the study group, Mrs. E. E. Coonradt, president, called the meeting to order. Several chairmen of standing committees gave their reports.

A committee was appointed to make arrangements for a theater party at the Willow Glen theater, proceeds to go to the unit for their welfare work. Mrs. M. F. Hughes was appointed chairman, with Mrs. E. A. Howe and Mrs. F. O. Bohnett as assistants.

Mrs. J. O. Leverton, chairman of Fathers' Night, and Mrs. S. N. Hedegard, co-chairman, reported that plans for that occasion were complete and they had invited Alonzo Baker to be the guest speaker, which invitation he has accepted.

Mrs. Coonradt introduced the new principal, W. S. Van Dyke, who gave a brief talk, and he, in turn, introduced the new English teacher, S. L. Ancker, who takes over the duties of Mrs. Harriet Hummel, recently retired.

Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Hughes, assisted by Sanford Hedegard, presented the unit with 25 beautiful hand-made trays, which were gratefully accepted by the members.

An impressive candle-lighting ceremony followed, the candle-lighters all being past presidents: Mrs. Arvis Knowles, Mrs. S. N. (Continued on Page 8)

Consolidated Seeks Publicity For Scenic Roads

Tuesday the members of the county consolidated chamber of commerce met to discuss emphasis and publicity for the fast scenic highways of the county.

Scenic routes as well as fast automobile routes should be publicized in maps and signs. The summit road leading to Big Trees, and Hecker Pass were mentioned as leading routes to be emphasized.

The group voted to encourage construction of an eastside express highway south from Oakland. They also discussed the blossom festival.

Delegates from several city chambers were present at the interesting meeting.

Woman's Club To Meet Monday

The Country Woman's Club will meet Monday, Feb. 21, for an interesting program and tea being arranged by Mesdames D. H. Cramer, R. E. Hanger, F. L. Howes, R. W. Kennedy and Lawrence Campodonico.

Petition Inviting Bank of America Here Circulated

At a regular meeting of the Chamber of Commerce and other interested citizens held last night to consider the matter of securing a bank for Campbell to replace the American Trust branch closing this Saturday, the following resolution was presented and after brief consideration, unanimously adopted:

"We do earnestly invite the Bank of America to establish a branch office at Campbell.

"We assure the Bank of America that the Campbell merchants, industrial plants, home owners, and other residents of the community will give you their utmost support, that you may enjoy with us our prosperity."

J. M. Dahl, Ed Genasci and Archie Keesling were appointed a supervising committee for the circulation of petitions in Campbell and its environs. This committee and its appointees were actively at work early this morning and the members of the chamber appointed to interview bank officials today will have some tangible evidence to present, with more to follow. This committee includes S. N. Hedegard, Carl B. Field, Ed Genasci, Dr. W. I. Merrill and R. H. Hyde.

The action to invite the Bank of America to enter the field here came after a local group had concluded not to continue plans to establish an independent bank.

The residents of this entire community are requested to sign these petitions and so help to insure local banking facilities.

San Francisco Symphony 'Cert Tomorrow Night

Tomorrow evening the entire San Francisco Symphony orchestra with its famed leader, Pierre Monteux, gives the long-looked-forward to concert in the Civic auditorium, San Jose. Daniel Ericourt, French pianist whose technique is said to be limitless and whose beautiful playing has brought him triumphs in the east, appears as soloist in the Liszt E flat major concerto.

High schools from many miles distant are sending buses of school children in order that their students may not miss the great opportunity. Even some 30 students are coming from the Gonzales high school.

Pierre Monteux is ranked as one of the greatest of conductors. He has conducted every large orchestra in Europe as guest conductor, was the regular conductor of the Paris symphony and for ten years the head of the Amsterdam symphony. In this country he directed the Boston symphony for five years. He took over the San Francisco body in 1936.

The San Francisco symphony, with Ericourt, comes to San Jose as a Denny-Watrous attraction; it will be followed by George Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess," concert version.

BIG SUPERHIGHWAY PLAN

Senator Bulkley Introduces His Measure for Toll Roads to Cost 8 Billions

Brig. Gen. Jay L. Benedict, center, and his staff are shown inspecting the cadet corps at West Point as General Benedict took over command of the military academy as superintendent, thirty-seventh to hold that post since the academy was instituted.

Bulkley's Toll Road Plan

WITH the approval of the President, Senator Bulkley of Ohio offered to the senate the great toll highway plan that he has been working on for some time. It is designed to be a long range medium of work relief for the jobless and to stimulate business.

Sen. Bulkley

The measure provides for the construction, by the federal government of ten superhighways across the country, three running east and west and three north and south. The cost is put at eight billion dollars. This, according to the terms of the bill, would be liquidated from "reasonable toll charges" and from sale or lease of tracts of a strip of land not over 550 feet wide on each side of each highway.

The tolls employed for estimating purposes were 25 and 50 cents on passenger and freight vehicles, respectively, plus 1 1/2 mills a passenger mile on passenger vehicles and 4 mills a ton mile on freight vehicles. Freight and passenger vehicles would operate on separate pavements.

More for Dole Asked

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT in a special message asked congress to appropriate $250,000,000 more for relief to supplement the billion and a half relief fund. He said this was necessary to care for three million persons thrown out of work during the last three months.

A bill to carry out the President's suggestions was introduced in the house immediately and speeded toward passage.

Steel Price Cut; Wages Stay

MAYBE President Roosevelt was right when he said recently that steel and other mass production industries could and should reduce prices to buyers' levels and at the same time maintain the general wage level. Anyhow, United States Steel is doing just that.

This huge corporation extended indefinitely its working agreements with the Committee for Industrial Organization in which present rates of wages and the eight-hour day are maintained. At the same time the price of cold rolled sheets—used in large amounts by the automobile industry—was reduced $4 a ton, the first break in the steel industry's price structure.

No Secret Alliances

WITH three curt expressions of "No," Secretary of State Hull denied that the United States has any alliance with Great Britain relating to the event of war, or with any other power or any agreement in connection with the operations of the American navy.

The denials were made in a letter to Senator Key Pittman, chairman of the senate committee on foreign relations. The letter, which was read in the senate, gave a specific answer to questions which have been raised by opposition senators, who have been seeking a definition of the administration's foreign policy.

House Passes Farm Bill

LIMITING debate by a gag rule, the house adopted the conference report on the administration's crop control bill by a vote of 263 to 135 and sent it on to the senate.

As it came out of conference, the measure continues, in an extended and revised form, the existing soil conservation program, providing benefit payments to co-operating farmers.

It would control production through acreage allotments on the five principal commodities on the basis of domestic and export needs. In bumper years, marketing quotas would be applied with penalty taxes to enforce them if approved by two-thirds of the affected farmers in national referendum.

It would set up an "ever normal" granary system by storing in bumper years surpluses on which loans would be made to the producers. Through this medium the administration aims to stabilize the flow of commodities during lean years to prevent consumers from being "highjacked" into exorbitant prices because of shortages.

Capone May Be Mad

ALCAPONE, who attained a bad eminence as America's most powerful gang leader during the prohibition era and was sent to Alcatraz for ten years for income tax fraud, is under observation in the hospital of "the Rock" and it is reported that he has lost his mind. His attorney says if medical men find he really is insane, he will apply for a writ of habeas corpus to get him out of prison.

Capone would be eligible for freedom on January 19, 1939, but still has awaiting him a sentence of one year in jail and a fine of $20,000.

Hitler Seizes Full Power

ADOLF HITLER has made himself the absolute ruler of Germany and has assumed full control of the armed forces of the reich, proclaiming himself "chief of national defense." Field Marshal Werner von Blomberg was removed from the post of war minister; Col. Gen. Hermann Goering, minister of aviation, was made general field marshal; Gen. Walter von Brauchitsch replaced Gen. Erich von Fritsch as commander in chief of the army; seven army generals and six generals of the air force were summarily dismissed.

According to the London Daily Herald, between 180 and 190 senior army officers were arrested in the German provinces. Reorganization of Germany's diplomatic corps was announced, the ambassadors to several European countries being changed.

In the shakeup Joachim von Ribbentrop was recalled from the London embassy and made foreign minister. No new minister of war was appointed, but Gen. Wilhelm Keitel was named chief of the supreme command and will rank as minister.

Monarchy Plot Foiled

BACK of Hitler's sudden grab of absolute power was a movement among high army officers for restoration of the monarchy. It was revealed in Berlin that a secret speech delivered by one general to a group of his fellow officers in which the return of the exiled former Kaiser Wilhelm was urged was reported to the reichsfuehrer and aroused his anger, hastening his determination to assume personal command of the armed forces.

Anyhow, the coup is a crushing victory for the Nazi government group over the army clique that had been growing daily more threatening to Hitler's regime and that was said to be planning to force his gradual retirement. The monarchists' plot, it is said, included the elevation to the throne of the ex-kaiser's second son, Prince Eitel Friedrich. Heinrich Himmler, head of the Gestapo or secret police, revealed it to Hitler.

What Small Business Wants

TWELVE delegates from the "little business" conference that held such uproarious sessions in Washington were received by President Roosevelt and presented to him a list of 23 proposals for the cure of their economic ills. These had been consolidated and toned down from the proposals conceived by the conference, the condemnation of much New Deal legislation being omitted.

The principal recommendations in the report were for easier credit for small business, repeal of the undivided profits tax, modification of the capital gains tax, equal responsibility on employer and employee for observance of mutual labor agreements, the return of relief to local governments as soon as possible, the abandonment of wage and hour legislation and the immediate investigation of the Wagner labor relations board.

Through Secretary Early, the President announced that a large majority of the recommendations seemed constructive and possible of fulfillment. Others, however, he felt, sounded well but were rather impractical.

It is known that the administration does not want the undivided profits tax completely repealed. Neither does it want relief returned to local governments, abandonment of wage and hour legislation, or interference with the Wagner labor relations board.

New West Point Chief

BRIG. GEN. JAY L. BENEDICT has assumed command as the new superintendent of the United States Military Academy at West Point, succeeding General Connors, about to retire for age.

General Benedict, who is fifty-five years old, began his military career as an enlisted man in the National Guard in 1898.

A. F. of L. Ousts Miners

WITH tears in his eyes, President Green of the A. F. of L. announced to the convention in Miami that the United Mine Workers of America, the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers and the Federation of Flat Glass Workers had been expelled from the federation. The miners' union is headed by John L. Lewis and is the nucleus of his C. I. O.

Madame Perkins on the Spot

SECRETARY OF LABOR PERKINS, who has been having a hard time explaining why Harry Bridges, C. I. O. leader on the Pacific coast, has not been deported as an alien Communist, has put herself in a tight place and aroused indignant protests from Joseph Kennedy, chairman of the maritime commission and ambassador-designate to Great Britain.

Madame Perkins appeared before the senate commerce committee and took a stand beside Ralph Emerson of the C. I. O. affiliated maritime union in condemnation of the maritime commission's proposal to settle labor disputes in the merchant marine by the mediation methods successfully employed on the railroads.

Kennedy, who was in Palm Beach, sent angry telegrams to the White House and it was said he was on his way to Washington to demand a showdown between himself and the labor secretary. If the President should side with her, Kennedy might be expected to quit the administration and give up his appointment to the court of St. James. Should Mr. Roosevelt uphold Kennedy, Secretary Perkins might resign from the cabinet.

Emerson defied congress to pass the bill and apply the principles of railway mediation to the merchant marine. He said the union would not obey the law if it was enacted, adding that "there are not enough Kennedys to man the ships."

Links C.I.O. With Reds

JOSEPH RYAN, president of the International Longshoremen's association, and A. F. of L. affiliate, told the senate commerce committee that the C. I. O. is tied up with the Communist party of America, and gave facts to support the charge. He also accused Mrs. Elinor M. Herrick, New York regional director of the National Labor Relations board, of using her official powers to wreck the A. F. of L. maritime and waterfront unions "with the ultimate objective of becoming secretary of labor under John L. Lewis."

After hearing Ryan's testimony the committee adopted Chairman Copeland's resolution calling for an appropriation of $50,000 for an investigation by a special senate committee of subversive influences in the merchant marine.

Fear Borah-O'Mahoney Bill

THE National Association of Manufacturers, apprehensive that President Roosevelt might take up the Borah-O'Mahoney bill to place corporations under a federal licensing system, denounced that measure as providing for an end of "home rule over business."

In a formal statement, the association declared the bill would permit the federal government to put any concern entirely out of business for "the most trivial violations" of the terms of its federal license.

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

AN OLD house sitting in the midst of old fields against a background of piney woods not so far from where the Pilgrims landed. The present occupant is just as interested in handwork and just as thrifty as all of her New England ancestors who have preceded her there. She still makes braided rag rugs from discarded garments and they harmonize perfectly with her lovely old furniture. One that she showed me was different than any I had ever seen. Here are all the dimensions and method of making it in case it is new to you, too, and you would like to make one like it.

The center oval part of this serviceable braided rag rug is 32 inches long and 16 inches wide with 6-inch scroll border all around. The scrolls are made in pairs from braided strips 2 1/4 yards long. These strips are braided tight so they are not more than 1/2 inch wide. The center of each strip is marked as shown here at A and the ends are then sewn around and around, working toward the center as at B. The pairs of scrolls are sewn together and also to the edge of the rug as indicated here at the lower right.

This kind of rug has infinite possibilities for color schemes. One seen had a blue center, a band of mixed color and then a wide band of red. The pairs of scrolls alternated red and blue.

That the children wear nothing but sun hats.

That women carry loads on their heads, men on their shoulders. That is, the men carry loads on their shoulders.

That a man is not liable for his wife's debts.

That water buffaloes, ready at all times to attack a tiger, will stand rough handling by a Balinese boy.

That some people have fingernails four inches long to show that they do not have to work.

That boats have eyes, so as to see at night.

Want to Be Themselves

Few envy another man; they envy his circumstances. By the time one is making money enough to enjoy life, he enjoys making money more than anything else.

People who insist on "living their own life," are likely to impose on the lives of others.

It is nonsensical to advise a man "not to take himself seriously." All men of character do. Where would Moses or St. Paul have been if they hadn't taken themselves seriously?

CHAPTER IX

Helm Blackadder was already closeted with the ambassador who opened the interview by handing over a resume, written in his own hand, of the situation to date.

"There you are, Mr. Blackadder, and I don't mind saying Miss Sewell's escapade has managed to put the United States government, as represented by my unfortunate self, in a nasty hole. You asked us for assistance; I now return the compliment by calling upon you to help me out."

"How?" asked Blackadder. "That's the very question I was going to put to you," he said. "You have all the facts. What do you suggest?"

"Find me a car and a man who knows the way to La Barranca. Once I get in there I'll guarantee to bring the girl out."

"On what grounds do you intend to base your action?"

"She's a minor and authority has been delegated to me by her legal guardian," said Blackadder as though he were reciting a lesson.

"You're sure she's under age?" interpolated the ambassador anxiously.

"You probably know the laws of the state of New York better than I do. A girl becomes of age at eighteen for certain purposes and at twenty-one for others. I'm willing to risk an assumption."

"Good enough," said the ambassador with a nod. "I can't offer you an embassy car, but I'll have the town searched at once for a good one owned by somebody well acquainted with the roads and the location of the hacienda. When could you start?"

"At dawn tomorrow," said Blackadder. "I'd go tonight but I doubt if we'd gain much time and it won't do me any harm to get some sleep."

He named his hotel and left the embassy at the exact moment Arnaldo, half across the city, was being shown into the private study of the minister of war.

"Adan, my friend!" exclaimed the minister, holding out both hands.

Arnaldo dodged the embrace but grinned, showing a gleam of white teeth. "How much is it going to cost me?" he asked. "From the welcome I'll bet it runs into thousands."

"You've guessed it," said the minister, "but the wrong way round. Thousands for you."

"I can't believe it! Spread the map."

"Sit down and I will. It's a matter of buying off a young girl at anything up to $50,000. You might talk her into signing for 30, 20, or 10. With your tongue and looks you might get her to do it for nothing. However you manage it the balance is yours, and no questions asked."

Adan turned his head in a peculiar gesture of alertness. "Who's the girl? What's her name?"

"She's a young American, Mees Joize Sewell."

Arnaldo threw out his hands and rose. "You're too late—too late by a lot of hours."

"Why? What do you know about it?"

"She went to La Barranca a couple of days ago. How long would it take Dorado to cook her goose? Figure it out for yourself."

"Dorado!" gasped the minister stifling a laugh. "Apparently you haven't read this morning's papers." He thrust forward the same newspaper clipping he had shown the ambassador. "Cast your eye over that."

Arnaldo read the single paragraph, his expression changing at almost every line. When he reached the end he burst into a roar of laughter. "Pepe, of all people! Pepe!"

"You think it's funny?" said the minister.

"Funny? It's so funny I'm going to have sore ribs for the rest of my life." He folded the clipping and put it in his wallet. "And Margarida Fonseca told me the girl had gone to plead with him—to throw herself on his mercy!"

"Margarida Fonseca!" cried the minister, suddenly going tense and leaning forward.

"Sure, and what of it?"

The minister sank back. "The plot gets thicker," he explained, "and when I say plot I mean plot. But I begin to see the light and by it the finger of Onelia. The time has come for you to declare yourself. Which are you for—him or me?"

"You," said Adan promptly.

"Now tell me what it's all about."

After ten minutes' talk the minister picked up a signed slip of paper and read its contents aloud: "As minister of war and with the consent of my government I guarantee the payment of an amount not to exceed $50,000 in case the senorita Joize Sewell, daughter and heir of Cutler Sewell, signs a quitclaim to the property known as La Barranca and leaves the republic of Mexico within two weeks of the date hereof." He passed it to Arnaldo and asked with pardonable pride,

"You notice the simple wording? Whoever brings in the quitclaim together with this order gets the money."

"Provided the girl has left Mexico."

"Yes, yes; of course. We don't care to have the job of expelling her, but once she's across the border we'll undertake to see she doesn't come back. What about it, Adan? Doesn't it look like easy money?"

"On the face of it," said Arnaldo slowly, "it does—too easy. Where's the catch?"

"For a man like you and with your resources," said the minister, "there's no catch whatever. There can't be. What's your answer? Will you take it on or not?"

Adan stood staring at the paper in his hand without seeing it. "I'll go," he declared finally.

They shook hands and he started out but before he reached the door the telephone rang with such insistency he paused. A moment later the minister was holding up his hand, ordering him to wait. The conversation began with "Yes, Excellency," and ended with the same phrase. He relinquished the apparatus and sat back.

"Well, Adan, you have a rival. The ambassador is sending his own emissary, a compatriot with the strange name of Blackadder."

"Good," said Adan. "Blackadder—it sounds like a snake. Then that let's me out."

"On the contrary; it doubles the importance of your mission. My thinking of you was a stroke of genius, because the more gringos get mixed in this business the worse it is for us. Besides, I feel the ambassador's choice hasn't a chance of success."

"By the way," Arnaldo said suddenly, "what do I get out of it?"

"I told you!" gasped the minister. "Isn't fifty thousand enough?"

"That's for the girl," said Arnaldo coolly. "If I lick Onelia, save your neck, attend to Dorado and keep a couple of countries out of war it's going to cost you fifty thousand more. Is it agreed?"

"I suppose so," said the minister after a long pause. "Do you want me to put it in writing?"

"Why should you?" asked Arnaldo with a thin gleam of shining teeth. "Once I've heard it you and I know your word is as good as your bond—once I've heard it."

He departed. Arnaldo knew when to rush at a job and when to take it easy. He got away around seven in the morning, curled up in the back seat and disposed himself for slumber. Juanito, his daredevil driver, knew little of speed under 60 miles an hour, consequently Adan's nap ended violently a little after eight o'clock.

For a moment he thought it was an earthquake, then realized it was merely the difference between the road before and after Toluca. He climbed into the front seat and presently was drowsing from the overhead struts as Joyce had done.

As they rounded a low butte the white blot of La Barranca burst into view, yet neither of them saw it. Instinctively Juanito slowed even before Adan could tap his wrist. Directly before them, possibly a little over halfway to the distant hacienda, a troop of horsemen was swirling in contracting circles around a slowly moving car.

"Back up," ordered Arnaldo, "and hide her. Stick her nose against the hill."

Juanito obeyed. A moment later they were climbing the mound which was crowned by a growth of three kinds of cacti, one of them a towering and many-branched sample of the giant torch variety. The horsemen, having brought the car to a halt, had gathered in a group ahead of it. Now a thick-set man stepped out of its tonneau and walked directly toward them. Scarcely had he left the car than its driver raced it backward into a Y turn, reversed his gears and presently was shooting at top speed across the plain with his recent employer in a direct line between him and the bandits.

"For once a coward saves his master's life," murmured Arnaldo. "I don't get it," said Juanito.

"The man you see down yonder is a gringo named Blackadder. Dorado and his men would have filled him full of holes if his louse of a driver hadn't created a diversion."

"Dorado!" breathed Juanito in an awed whisper.

Blackadder was scarcely conscious of his driver's treachery, so absorbed was his attention by the gaping muzzles of two double-action forty-fives and the man who held them. Experience in many tough spots of the world, notably mining camps and the diamond fields of Lencoes, had taught him a gun at the level of the hip invariably means business. Besides, Dorado's pear-shaped face presented such a vivid incarnation of brutality as to arouse doubt as to whether the six-shooters might not in the long run turn out to be angels of mercy. Instinctively Helm raised both hands and kept them high. Without appearing to move a muscle Dorado sent a searing bullet between the spread fingers of one of them.

"Put 'em down," he ordered in guttural English, then murmured instructions to two of his followers.

They dismounted, frisked Blackadder for arms, seized him by feet and wrists, swung him into the saddle of one of their horses and trussed his ankles beneath its barrel so tightly he winced at the pain. He started to protest in Spanish but caught his tongue in time. Both men mounted the remaining riderless horse and the cavalcade was off. Dorado rode at its head at a mile-eating hand gallop and the rest followed, closely bunched around the prisoner.

The barranca was narrowing steadily. Three abandoned drifts gaped in the walls of the chasm, two on the southern, one on the northern side, and along the stream for a distance of a hundred yards men could be seen busily sloshing wooden bateas for placer gold. With a muttered order Dorado dismounted and passed into the recesses of the largest of the cave-like openings. In a moment every rider was unsaddled and the freed horses were driven helter-skelter upstream into a cliff-locked corral.

The nearest man to Blackadder drew his sheath knife and slashed the taut thong connecting his ankles. Either by accident or on purpose the knife severed the girth and gashed the pony's hide as well. The horse leaped in air, hurling rider and saddle to the ground. There was a roar of laughter. Finding himself unable to rise Blackadder started to crawl on hands and knees to the brook, intending to bathe his lacerated and half-paralyzed legs in the cooling water.

At each sash of the icy water his fury rose, restoring his courage and determination to more than their normal level. Leaning far over he extracted passport and wallet from his breast pocket and managed to thrust them under a flat stone. Presently Dorado called to him—not loudly, but the funnel of the drift acted like a megaphone.

"Come here, cabron."

Blackadder found he could barely walk. He approached, entered and at a gesture from Dorado sank on a truss of hay with his back against the wall. Instantly his long training as a miner set his senses alert. He deduced the fact that there must be a shaft, small or large, somewhere in the rear of the cave. Blackadder's nostrils informed him such was the case, not by reason of any odor but because of an indescribable thinness in the air. Dorado straddled a camp stool.

"You spik Castellano?" he asked.

"No," lied Blackadder.

"What is your name?"

"Henry Gilfalcon."

"Henrique, hein? You gringo—Americano?"

"No, I'm British," said Blackadder, but instantly regretted the falsehood, for at the sudden hardening of Dorado's luminous eyes he realized it had not gone over.

"I think perhaps you lie," said Dorado softly. "When I know you lie I send a finger to the American ambassador—one finger each week. How much money you got?"

"I did lie," said Blackadder, "and I'm sorry. I'm an American, but all my money—everything I had in the world—was in my dispatch case in that car."

"No money, eh? Perhaps pretty soon somebody want to buy you for 25,000 pesos. Better write letter while you have enough fingers. You write letter any time you like; I read it. You say send money to General Dorado, Mexico City."

"I see," said Blackadder, frowning thoughtfully.

Something was stirring in his brain—a seed, an acorn that developed in a flash to the size of a full-grown oak. Roughly it could be framed in a single question. Why not substitute La Barranca for the ransom of 25,000 pesos and thus kill four birds with one stone?

In spite of exhaustion he could not sleep, tortured by the aching of his swollen ankles, but toward dawn fell into a doze. It proved a misfortune, since by the time he was roused Dorado and his riders had already departed on their daily foray, but the guards remained. The day proved unlucky for Dorado as well. At nightfall, wafted along within a blue cloud of blasphemy, he was carried in on an improvised litter and laid on his cot; the bullet that had pierced his thigh had killed his horse.

CHAPTER X

Arnaldo had stayed crouched beside the trunk of the cactus much longer than ordinary caution required, thinking and thinking hard. A full hour elapsed before he led the way back to the car and ordered Juanito to proceed.

Juanito never missed a chance to make speed and as the trail frequently forked this way and that, dodging the mudholes of the recent rainy season, he was forced to come to some quick decisions. Such a choice now presented itself. The fork to the left was undoubtedly the main road but the wheel marks to the right seemed fresher. He chose the former, yielding instinctively to the pull of memory, for he had driven this way once before. Recollection told him there would be a short bridge, relic of more prosperous times. But there was no bridge; it had been carried away in the last floods. He jammed down both feet, reached for the emergency brake and brought the car to a halt on the very lip of an arroyo fully 12 feet deep and twice as wide.

"Numskull!" growled Arnaldo.

"Jump, imbecile!"

Slowly the car was nosing down and but for the emergency brake would have glided forward and then rushed. Arnaldo on one side and Juanito on the other scrambled up from the bank just in time to cross a steadily widening fissure. The push of their feet was the last straw; a great block of earth gave way with a dull rumble. The car made a nose dive, bounced and fell on its back, its four wheels in air.

"Norway Pine" Misnomer; Forest Service Orders It Shall Be Known as "Red Pine"

The Federal Forest service has decreed that hereafter the Norway pine, so common to the Lake states, shall be known as, and called, the red pine. Instructions to this effect have been sent to all National forest custodians.

The name "Norway" has been in common usage with us although it is a misnomer. According to authorities the name is wholly out of place, for the tree is not a foreigner but a native of North America. It is related that the name Norway pine was given the tree by a Spanish captain who first found it here. Its close resemblance to pines he had seen in Norway caused him to suppose it identical with such as he had seen growing there, which undoubtedly were Scottish pines.

Simon B. Elliott, in his work on important timber trees of the United States, said: "Its technical name also is inappropriate. Pinus resinosa, which it is called, means resin pine, and why the red pine should be given that name when its wood contains less resin than any other hard timber pine is very strange."

The name red pine is appropriate for this tree and is quite generally recognized throughout its eastern range. The bark and wood are reddish, the winter buds red-brown, the staminate flowers scarlet or reddish purple and the scales of the pistillate flowers scarlet.

The red pine, next to the white pine, used to be the most important timber tree of the Lake states. Today it is planted as extensively as white and jack over state and federal reservations. It has one advantage over white for reforestation purposes—it will take root and thrive in soils too sterile and light for white pine, and for this reason is found in extensive stands on the sandy plains of the North.

Dwarfed Since Coal Age

When coal was in the making in the earth insects were like giants flying in the air. A genus of dragonflies with a wingspread of about a foot, although their body diameter was not much greater than a lead-pencil, probably were the most striking.

San Diego.—San Diego's egg-eating championship was claimed recently by Paul Christen, paint company employe, after he had polished off twenty hard-boiled eggs in one minute. Carl Zilliox and John Anderson witnessed Christen's feat. "He had two men breaking the shells for him and he helped open them himself," said Zilliox.

School Girls and Crime
Los Angeles.—An amazing crime career of 10 burglaries was attributed to two girls, 14 and 15 years of age, by sheriff's deputies recently. The girls, students at a Junior High School, had hidden $10,000 worth of jewelry in their homes without the knowledge of their parents, the deputies said.

Museum To Be Enriched
Santa Ana.—More than 30,000 Indian relics soon will be on display in Santa Ana's Bowers Museum. W. B. Murbarger, Costa Mesa archeologist, has sent word he will return soon with Indian-made shell, stone beads, charms, pendants and hair ornaments which have been removed from twenty-three graves on the 42,000-acre San Marcos Ranch near Santa Barbara.

Unfair to Dogs
San Francisco.—Two dog owners, who said they had the support of others, went to the police with complaints about a tomcat with a superiority complex. The cat utterly vanquished their pets, they said, and made the streets near Chinatown unsafe for dogs. Police Captain Bernard McDonald warped Ton Lee, Chinese restaurateur, to blockade the belligerent cat in the basement.

Iowans Fifth in South
Los Angeles.—Contrary to popular legend that California is only a suburb of Iowa, latest available figures show that of the native-born of other states residing in Southern California, the Iowa group stands fifth. The figures for the first six States' representation in the local area follow: Illinois, 72,933; Missouri, 49,590; New York, 49,357; Ohio, 42,212; Iowa, 41,352; and Texas, 40,644. According to C. H. Parsons, secretary of the Iowa Federation and of the California States Federation, many of the new arrivals have at one time or another lived in Iowa and upon arrival here, in order to be with old friends, have become members of the Iowa organization. At its office, the federation has more than 1,000,000 registrations from every State and almost every county in the United States. About 80 per cent of the local population is from out of California.

Sacramento.—The name and insignia of the Comrades of the Dog House, Oakland fraternal order of married men, were registered recently at the Secretary of State's office by "Mastiff" Harold H. Maundrell, the association's chief officer.

Aid to Blind Limited
San Francisco.—Decision of the State Social Welfare Department to deny aid to blind persons if they possess more than $500 in cash or securities was made known recently to the San Francisco Public Welfare Commission. Members predicted the rule, effective March 1, would affect several score persons of the 400 in San Francisco who now are receiving aid through joint donations of the Federal government, the State and the county.

Liquor Men Seek Raise
Sacramento.—The State Personnel Board, at a meeting recently heard General Paul B. Malone, brewing industry chief, urge higher salaries for State liquor control officers. The control officers are seeking a minimum salary of $200. They are now receiving from $150 to $180 per month. A plea for increases in pay for tugboat captains was presented by Captain George Fouratt. Demands of State Highway Department right-of-way men were also presented.

Cutting Fruit Cake.—To prevent fruit cake from crumbling while slicing, dip the knife into warm water frequently.

Basting Velvet Dress.—Silk thread should be used for basting velvet dresses to avoid marking.

Sardine Salad.—One tin sardines, one lettuce, one lemon, parsley, french dressing. Cut sardines in half inch lengths, arrange on bed of lettuce. Garnish with lemon, parsley, serve with french dressing.

Tip for Good Posture.—While walking, swing the legs from the hips and imagine you are walking down hill with arms and shoulders relaxed.

Croutons for Soups.—Cut slices of dry bread one-half inch thick, spread with butter and cut into one-half inch cubes, put them in a shallow pan and bake in a moderate oven about 10 minutes or till golden brown, turning often to brown all sides.

WORKS IN 2 WAYS ON DISCOMFORT OF COLDS

1. Take 2 BAYER ASPIRIN tablets and drink a full glass of water. Repeat treatment in 2 hours.

2. If throat is sore from the cold, crush and mix 3 BAYER ASPIRIN tablets in 1/2 glass of water. Gargle twice. This eases throat rawness and soreness almost instantly.

All it usually costs to relieve the misery of a cold today—is 3¢ to 5¢—relief for the period of your cold 15¢ to 25¢. Hence no family need neglect even minor head colds.

Here is what to do: Take two BAYER tablets when you feel a cold coming on—with a full glass of water. Then repeat, if necessary, according to directions in each package. Relief comes rapidly.

The Bayer method of relieving colds is the way many doctors approve. You take Bayer Aspirin for relief—then if you are not improved promptly, you call the family doctor.

Sentinels of Health

Don't Neglect Them!

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure. When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out. Frequent, scanty or burning passages may be further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance. The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

GEORGE WASHINGTON

DARK days of uncertainty and confusion held the United States in a paralyzing grip during the stormy six years which followed 1871.

True, the superb generalship of Washington, commander-in-chief of the continental armies, had completely shattered Britain's yoke with the final military masterstroke of the Revolutionary war—the successful siege of Yorktown and Cornwallis' abject surrender.

But who was now to unite the young and struggling nation in peace as it had been united in war? Alarmed by its political chaos, Washington stated anxiously during these years, "Something must be done, or the fabric must fall, for it is certainly tottering!" To influential friends, he wrote countless letters, making a vigorous plea for an indissoluble union.

When the first bold step was taken toward such a union with the calling of the Constitutional convention in 1787, it was apparent that only the dynamic leadership of Washington could guide that convention successfully through the Valley Forge of political strife which threatened to rend the young nation apart.

And when the framework and structure of that "more perfect union" had at last been agreed upon, the man who had fought so valiantly in war and peace to create such a union was the one chosen to guide its new destiny. In no state was any other person than Washington considered for the high post of America's first president.

And when, at last, death overtook Washington one December night in 1799, Henry Lee voiced the sentiment of America then, as he voices it today, in deathless words which affirm, "He was first in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen."

STRIKE UP THE BAND!

CALIFORNIA appears ready to climb aboard the housing bandwagon and make sweet music. On the program of the indicated special session is passage of an enabling act to untie the federal purse strings and permit California to receive five millions as her share of the federal housing drive.

If the rest of the United States had kept in step with this state's pace during 1937, the strains of the "recessionary" anthem which have been floating across the land might have been greatly diminished in volume. With only 4.4 per cent of the nation's population, California had originated, by the year's end, 16 per cent of all FHA-insured loans, or $147,000,000 worth.

Whatever brings assurance that this same tempo will be carried on in California this year, under the recently enacted federal program, brings good news. Such news comes from E. P. Palmer, vice-president-at-large of the Associated General Contractors, who do the bulk of the nation's construction and building. Mr. Palmer set any worries of prospective home-builders at rest in his recent report that the proposed freight rate increases would increase costs of building less than a fraction of one per cent, while the rate advances will go far in helping railroads increase their employment, purchasing, and in stimulating business everywhere.

Coupled with this is the assurance of Assistant Housing Administrator Pearson who stated, on his recent visit to California, that the housing administration will not compete with private capital, but will lend its funds to local housing agencies.

Passage of the enabling act will be the prelude to a rousing symphony scored for the melody of the carpenter's hammer and saw, and all the trades and industries who constitute the soldiers' chorus of an indispensable army of workmen. So strike up the band!

HURICANE!

SUDDENLY out of the blue of California skies comes lusty wind and rain and hail and sleet! Man's triumph in steel bridges and skyscrapers sway in the gale—and then, defying the elements, stand taut and safe against the icy breath of the hurricane. And in the cities as the sun breaks through, the storm is quickly forgotten; there is no more talk of the pranks of weather.

But on the farm it is not Puck who whistles the tune of the hurricane. No whimsy there, in floods of raging torrents or sudden snows. It's a serious matter—the life and death of crops!

A GANGSTER PAYS

RETRIBUTION has its own "Devil's Island" for the one-time overlord of gangland vice, "Scarface Al" Capone. The news has flashed around the world that America's all-time No. 1 gangster is hopelessly insane. A "tough guy" is now babbling harmless nonsense instead of barking orders to gun men. Capone was due to be released in less than a year from the federal prison on Alcatraz island, but retribution has built for him a prison from which there is no escape.

Doomed by dread disease to a mad, self-torturing, phantom-world, Capone will grow progressively worse, according to medical science. The world this former gangster leaves behind when he wanders into the final black prison of madness, did not sentence Capone to this Devil's Island. It is a punishment more horrible than civilized man dares impose on any fellow human being. But retribution did not hesitate to strike!

YOUTH GOES RUGGED

THOUSANDS of ski fans, swirling into a cloudland of snow, illustrate the new enthusiasm for winter sports in California. And now comes a new development, sponsored by junior chamber of commerce groups, which, too, will beckon exuberant youth to the great outdoors. The "youth-hostel" movement, successful for years in European countries, is to be transplanted to California.

Designed as a chain of inexpensive, well-supervised shelter houses, connected by hiking and bicycling routes, the "hostels" will open a new world of healthful, outdoor fun for young California, and provide low-cost vacations under proper and adequate sponsorship.

Such a youth program, painted against the backdrop of the magnificent and varied scenery of California, probably will be welcomed in every quarter of the state, for few are the communities which do not boast some scenic bit of loveliness "just off the beaten path," where automobiles and trucks and trains never reach, but where hikers and cycles could safely journey.

Youth's healthy interest and enthusiasm for the plan is significant, and parents of young boys and girls throughout the state cannot fail to mark it.

They cannot fail to wonder hopefully if perhaps the movement has finally come that will turn the curiosity of budding youth away from the gaudy, dim-lit cocktail bars and set their faces toward healthy, normal pursuits—to be found on the sunny "hostel" trails.

THE COST OF CARELESSNESS

IF YOU'RE an average American, you've one chance in 13 of being accidentally injured or killed during 1938!

Basing their statistics on past performances, the national safety council this week predicted that over nine million Americans will be temporarily disabled during the coming year by falls, fires, and the fury of auto drivers—that 375,000 more will be doomed to life-long pain by permanent injuries—and that 106,000 will die for their carelessness.

Ten million dead and disabled a year! That toll is greater than the annual casualty list of all nations in the World war. In four years of the rat-tat-tat of machine guns and the deadly silence of poison gas, a total of 37,000,000 men were killed or injured. That was the cost of war! In four years of modern American living, 39,000,000 Americans will meet death or injury through carelessness. That is the cost of peace!

What price does America pay for this annual jamboree of carelessness? The actual dollars and cents price-tag has been estimated at $3,700,000,000, a total equal to half the yearly cost of the American government.

Millions of lives and dollars! Don't be careless. Watch your step!

A CCC FOR THE SEA

"THE liner she's a lady," Kipling records in one of his poems, and a lady calls for gentlemen. The new American merchant marine—ships to sail the seven seas—will need trained officers to walk her quarter-decks and trained crews to man the vessels.

Congress, along with talk of cargo and dollars, is giving thought to the men who make a hulk of steel a moving ship. Life before the mast must be developed, say experts, as a career! Sea-minded boys must be trained for a life of service on the bounding main.

Training stations for tomorrow's crews, a CCC of the sea. Certainly there must be thousands of young men still fired by the spirit of Drake, young men who thrill to the tales of Conrad and the sharp smells of foreign ports. Those young men, trained in the arts of the sea, would sail America's new fleet to the ends of the earth.

A modernized merchant marine calls for a new deal for an old trade. New ships plus new blood will send America across the waves as in the days of the clipper ships. How about a CCC for the sea?

CENTURY OF ENDEAVOR

CALIFORNIA was just a lusty youngster of a state, not yet six years old, and the oil lamp and the crinoline bustle were symbols of the day, when California's first railroad trundled manfully over wooden rails on its inaugural run between Sacramento and Folsom, Feb. 22, 1856.

That ancient roadbed, which poked its finger into the rich placer mining region of the Mother Lode country, may have been shy on speed. But the puffing billy which jounced so gamely over the 22-mile route offered thrills aplenty. No one knew when a rail might break loose, smash through the floor of the wooden carriage, and bite a passenger's leg!

This sturdy Tom Thumb engine has long since been laid to rest, but the thrill and zest of travel remain—even though we don't, fortunately, have to worry about a rambunctious rail nipping our ankles. Last year the greatest tourist trek in state history streamed across California. And that a goodly number of these travelers were prompted by the same impulse which tingled the nerves of passengers on the old Mother Lode route—to try the newest thrill—is borne out in a recent report. Since their introduction last March the Southern Pacific's "Daylight" streamliners, speeding daily like red and yellow serpentine streamers between Los Angeles and San Francisco, have broken all records for long distance passenger-carrying. And with good reason. That's their job—to add spice to the zest for travel with ever-increasing luxury, speed, and safety.

The vest pocket engine of 1856 with its funnel-shaped smokestack and giant-powered rail monarchs of 1938 bear vivid proof of a tireless endeavor, covering nearly a century, to fulfill that aim. And the job is not yet done—nor will it ever be as long as people travel.

Mrs. Mary Carvelho and grandson Joe, of Rincon avenue, left Saturday on the "Matsona" for Hawaii where they will visit her children for three months.

The FARMERS CORNER

by RALPH H. TAYLOR
Executive Secretary
Agricultural Council of California

The case of the people of the United States versus Harry Bridges, radical firebrand of the C.I.O., now being heard before the senate commerce committee to determine whether Bridges should be deported as an undesirable alien, will be watched with vital interest by California agriculture and farmers throughout the nation.

Documentary evidence alleging that Bridges, under the alias of Harry Dorgan, was an active Communist leader and has conspired with other Communists to create dissension and discord among maritime workers, is said to be in the hands of the senate committee.

And Senator Royal Copeland of New York, Democratic chairman of the trial committee, makes the definite charge that the west coast has suffered more than a billion dollars in losses as a result of strikes incited by Bridges and alleged Communist associates.

Agriculture's interest in the case is three-fold:

First, California's farming industry—in common with agriculture in other Pacific coast states—has suffered tremendous losses as a result of strikes and shipping tie-ups which have been engineered by Bridges and his associates. Crops have rotted on the docks; markets have been lost; farmers have been plunged into debt or bankruptcy, through no fault of their own. And the agent of disaster, in almost every instance, was Harry Bridges, an alien who thought so little of the United States that he has never taken out final citizenship papers.

Second, Bridges and his followers have boasted that they now propose to "march inland" and organize farm workers, so that they will have control of production as well as transportation.

And third, California farmers, apart from every other consideration, have an intense loyalty to their state and nation and believe that the time has come to stop temporizing with enemies of American government, who defy law and order and seek to foment class struggle.

According to Senator Copeland, investigators of the senate committee have discovered a Communist party "book," or registration card, issued to Bridges under the alias of Dorgan, carrying notations, allegedly in Bridges' own handwriting.

The committee also claims to have in its possession affidavits giving inside details of conferences between Bridges and Communist leaders at which plans were discussed for inciting labor disturbances and gaining control of the merchant marine.

Adding a note of mystery to the proceedings was the fact that Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, openly sympathetic with Bridges, protested turning over evidence in her files to the senate trial board. And the mystery deepened when the committee charged that the file, as originally submitted by Miss Perkins, failed to contain vital documentary evidence in her possession—namely, a report by a Seattle labor department representative, recommending the arrest of Bridges and his trial with a view to deportation; Bridges' own deposition, concerning his labor and political activities, and a series of affidavits by west coast labor men, accusing Bridges of fomenting strikes and promoting Communism.

Whether or not Bridges is a Communist still remains to be definitely established; it is to be hoped that the senate committee ferrets out the facts and that Secretary of Labor Perkins remembers her obligation as a high public official and cooperates with the committee to that end.

But irrespective of the outcome of efforts to link C. I. O. Leader Bridges to Communist Dorgan, the evidence would seem fairly conclusive—at least to a farm jury—that Bridges is an undesirable alien, out of sympathy with American government and American principles, who should be deported before he has further opportunity to bring disaster to Pacific coast agriculture and Pacific coast cities. American agriculture, American industry and American seamen would be better off without him.

QUESTIONS

Q. What is the best soil in which to grow seeds, when they are to germinate in flats? R. N.

A. We generally think at once of leaf mold. But caution should be exercised in using this mulch for seedling growth. The reason is simply that leaf mold incorporates a great many types of soil and often is infested with disease organisms. These organisms often cause the seedlings to rot at the place where they just peep through the soil top. This is called by nurserymen as "damping off." For the majority of our seeds use 1-3 sand to 2-3 peat moss. This furnishes proper moisture and oxygen and is fairly sterile. Remember, use this mixture only in flats. Another formula which uses good decomposed leaf mold is—1-3 garden loam, 1-3 sharp sand, and 1-3 peat moss. The root systems that are created in these mixtures are strong and healthy. After all, the stronger the root system the better the plant. Run the mixtures through a 1/4-in. screen mesh and dampen it a little before placing in flats or seed pans. Flats are good 3 in. deep, 10-12 in. wide and 14 in. long.

Q. What is Red Fescue? Mrs. R. L.

A. Red fescue is a lawn grass, chiefly used for lawns or fairways. It likes a cool climate and sandy soil. It makes a good turf under correct conditions. The grass is fine, short, wiry and dullish-green in color.

Q. What are the cultural requirements for calla lilies?—Mrs. P. R.

The common callas do best in rich, heavy, well drained soil. They need plenty of moisture and good drainage, but don't plant them in gravel soil. When planted in too dry or gravel soil they do not do so well. Callas can be grown in the shade on the north sides of our homes. The stems grow longer in the shade than they do if in the sun. In the winter they need some protection, but if the ground freezes badly they should be dug and stored. Callas can be started from seed or the bulbs can be divided when the clumps get too big.

PLANT NOW

For a quick growth and yet something quite pretty, try Virginia stocks.

Clarkia can be sown now. It is a hardy and colorful flower. Sow petunias, tall larkspur, pinks, bachelor buttons, blue ageratum, and Chinese forget-me-nots. Have you tried annual gaillardias? There are perennial gaillardias also that are very common. For a very colorful vine, and yet one from which you can eat, is the scarlet runner bean. The pods are very tasty.

Before sowing these seeds, wait till the ground is not so sticky and is more workable. Sweet peas should be sown before the middle of the month is past. Sow now for early bloom.

Flowers are so nice to cover odd corners and unsightly looking vacancies in our yards. If this rainy weather keeps up we will have to sow our seeds in flat boats, so until next time keep your smile smiling and the garden shining.

JACK LONEY

goes to aviation school

This picture was taken at Walla Walla, where Jack took early lessons to convince his parents of his aptitude. Nearly half of Ryan's flight students have had previous training, but only 40 per cent of the 125 youths will be pilots.

Typical of the average student pilot, 21-year old Jack Loney of Walla Walla, Washington, is attending Ryan school of aeronautics at San Diego, Calif., training for a full time career in the country's newest and most fascinating major industry. FOTO-FEATURE present Jack Loney as a representative young man in aviation, although, unlike most fellow students, he does not come from the middle west. "John Pilot" is 21, three years out of high school, from a midwestern community of 20,000, and financially aided by his parents who have not encouraged his flying, but have consented to it. "John" has been interested in airplanes several years, but decided on his career in aviation only a few months ago. He arrives at San Diego by bus, registers, then begins the one-year course of instruction. The story of "John Pilot," in the person of Jack Loney, starts at the left.

Registering at Ryan school, Jack tells Earl D. Prudden, vice president, how he soloed in Walla Walla after three hours and 25 minutes in the air. He will be reprimanded.

School begins as Instructor Verne Murdock gives Jack a parachute. Five days a week will be spent at Lindbergh field, home of Ryan school. There is a definite curriculum, rigid as that of any school.

Time for the first solo! Jack and a fellow student match coins to see who goes up first. The onlooker is Russell Stevenson of Chicago. Of each day 30 minutes to an hour is spent in the air.

Jack takes off on his first solo. Note there is no instructor in the front cockpit. Many a former grocery clerk, musician, truck driver, gas station attendant or "soda jerk" has experienced this amazing thrill. About half of Ryan's students come direct from employment, the remainder from high schools or colleges.

"Brain work" enters the picture. Jack discusses a rigging problem with Virgil McKinley, instructor. Ryan school, founded and managed by able T. Claude Ryan, is the oldest government-approved school in America.

Airplane and engine maintenance procedure is part of the course. Jack Loney is at work with a wing rib here learning about the machine he flies.

FOTO-FEATURE

Jack and Instructor Murdock take off in a Ryan S-T sport training plane. Loney must take several hours of additional instruction before being allowed to fly alone, despite his previous solo experience. Barnstorming Tex Rankin gave Jack his first ride 10 years ago at Walla Walla, when the Senior Mr. Loney took his youngster up for a thrill.

"Well, I told you I'd do it," Jack smiles after landing from his solo. Ahead of him are several months of training maneuvers, cross-country flights and "beam" practice.

Like most students, Jack lives in a private San Diego home for $35 a month. Here he is "hangar-flying" with his room mates over the dinner table. Day is done, and like all other working people, the Ryan students gossip about their experiences, discuss their high hopes for the future of American aviation.

New Worlds to Conquer

Jack Loney follows illustrious tradition at Ryan school. T. Claude Ryan started the first year-round passenger line between San Diego and Los Angeles. Later he built the "Spirit of St. Louis" for Col. Charles A. Lindbergh. Hoping to become equally talented in his chosen profession, Jack Loney will complete 200 hours of flying time at Ryan school. Then he will probably become a flight officer with the National Guard and continue to pile up flying hours until his experience justifies the airlines' taking him on as a full-time captain or first officer. Aviation, still in its infancy, offers Jack Loney new worlds to conquer. First, he must earn his wings.

Favorite Recipe of the Week

For Washington's Birthday.

FEBRUARY 22 would not be completely celebrated if cherries were not featured in some way during the day. It is true that the story of the cherry tree and George Washington is more closely connected in the memory of many of us than his great prowess as the Father of our Country. We seem to take for granted his ability as a leader and talk about the cherry tree episode of his youth.

This recipe for cherry pie is made to use the entire contents of a No. 2 can of cherries, which holds 2½ cupfuls.

Cherry Pie.

1 No. 2 can Pitted 2 tablespoons corn-
Red Sour Cherries starch
6 tablespoons sugar ¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon butter

Line an 8-inch pie pan with pastry. Drain the cherries from the juice and place them in the pastry shell. Mix together sugar, cornstarch and salt and sprinkle over the cherries. Pour on the juice; dot with butter and cover with a thin top crust or with strips of pastry. Bake in a hot oven (475 degrees) for 12 minutes; reduce temperature to 425 degrees and continue baking for 45 minutes.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK...

By Lemuel F. Parton

NEW YORK.—There is hope for world peace and solvency. Some day a little band of diplomats and financiers will meet in the Paris catacombs or a London fog, heavily disguised, and put something over, and Pertinax won't catch them at it. To date, the watchful French journalist has anticipated and cried down every effort, warning all and sundry that, whatever it is, it won't work.

Thus, the studios proposals of Paul van Zeeland, former premier of Belgium, were blasted several weeks in advance of their publication, as just so much eye-wash.

Pertinax is one of the most brilliant and influential journalists of Europe and anything he touches up in advance goes in with two strikes against it. As does the Van Zeeland plan for economic reconstruction.

Walt Disney is readying "Snow White" for France. That probably means that Pertinax is preparing to swing on it, just before it lands there. One American commentator made the film his sole exception in many years of dissent. Nothing like that may be expected from Pertinax.

He is the only full-time dissenter who bats 1,000. He has picked fights with Senator Borah, former President Hoover (being the only man ever to assail an American President with that dignitary present), with all the Germans, before, during and after the war, and with all ambassadors of good will.

In 1933, the French government announced it would spend $1,320,000 to build good will in America. Pertinax, fielding that one, pegged over to this country some sour cracks about American materialism. And, just in passing, any French journalist ought to know a lot about materialists. For a few days it looked as if he might overlook the recent Brussels conference, but he was on the job and smeared it in plenty of time to get it a bad press. He is at his best in discovering and exposing Geneva's good will conspiracies.

He is a Parisian sophisticate, dapper, dressy, monocled, getting about a great deal and nosing in various diplomatic feed-boxes—a first-class reporter; but never satisfied. One of the depressing things about him is that he is so often right as he pans this or that hopeful endeavor before anybody else knows what it is.

PROPOS of recent flare-ups of the behaviorist argument among the psychologists, here's Eugene Ormandy in the news as a timely exhibit of the effect of early conditioning. Long before he was married, Eugene Ormandy's father, a Hungarian dentist, used to say, "Some day I'm going to get married and have a son and I'm going to make him a great violinist." Years later, he pressed a tiny violin into his new baby's hand and had him coached in rhythm before he was out of the cradle.

At the age of three, the boy was working hard at his violin lessons. His only toys were music boxes. And now, Eugene Ormandy, conductor of the Philadelphia orchestra, gets the Gustav Mahler medal, following the performance of his composition, "Das Lied Von Der Erde."

At the age of five, he was a student in the Budapest academy of music, through at fourteen, but not allowed to go on tour as a violinist until he was seventeen. In 1921, he was in New York, hoping to bridge the break in his career with his last five-cent piece. He did, as a violinist at the Capitol theater, then assistant conductor, later with Roxy's gang and then six years as conductor of the Minneapolis symphony orchestra. He is perhaps the first conductor to be upped to fame by radio.

His father in Hungary isn't altogether pleased. "Just think what a great violinist you might have been," he wrote to his son.

Crocodile Foiled
Three white men with guns and dozens of tribesmen with spears rescued a native boy from the jaws of a crocodile on a tributary of the Mitchell river in northeast Australia, it is reported at Brisbane. Blood-curdling screams woke the camp and the huge reptile was seen carrying the boy to the stream by his shoulder. It reached the shallows and started for deep water. The contour of the bank enabled the rescuers to head it off. Repeating rifles at close range failed to stop the beast, but it was maneuvered into such a position that natives drove many spears into it.

"Abide With Me," Victory Song
"Abide With Me" was the victory chant of the English when they took Jerusalem during the World war. It figured in another great conquest when Lord Kitchener reconquered for England the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan. "Abide With Me" was sung to commemorate the victory.

Historic Hoaxes

The Cardiff Giant
IN THE late sixties a Chicago tobacco dealer named George Hull heard a clergyman express the belief that men of gigantic stature once lived on earth. It gave him an idea. Out of a 12-foot block of stone he carved the figure of a man. It was a hard job to simulate pores in the skin but he managed to do it and after giving the stone man a bath in sulphuric acid and ink, he shipped it to the farm of his relative, William C. Newell, near Cardiff, N. Y. There it was buried for a year to "age" it properly.

Next Newell hired some of his neighbors to dig a well for him and behold! the well-diggers "discovered" the giant. Four doctors, called from town, examined it and agreed that it was the petrified remains of a prehistoric man. A Syracuse antiquarian declared it was a statue "probably made by early Jesuit missionaries" at least 300 years ago and offered Newell $10,000 for it. A professor of natural science at Rochester university examined it and wrote that "although not dating back to the Stone age, it is nevertheless deserving the attention of archeologists."

Within a short time the "Cardiff Giant" was one of the wonders of the modern world. Newell began charging people 50 cents each to see it, and business was so good that a group of Syracuse business men bought a three-quarters interest in it for $30,000. But such good fortune couldn't last always. A Yale professor examined it carefully, found tool marks on it and other evidence that it had not been buried long.

When it seemed that the hoax was about to be exposed, the giant was shipped to New York. But P. T. Barnum, who had failed in his efforts to buy it for his museum, suspecting that the giant was a hoax, had one of his own made and began exhibiting it. This led to public suspicion that Newell's discovery was also a fake and the Yale professor confirmed that belief. So the "Cardiff Giant" soon became just another "forgotten man."

The Drake Estate

FOR more than half a century the "Drake estate" legend has been used to defraud Americans of millions of dollars but so long as the "get rich quick" desire persists, it will probably continue to harvest its crop of gold for swindlers.

The story they tell is that Sir Francis Drake, naval hero and freebooter of Queen Elizabeth's day, left an estate which, held in trust by the British government, is now estimated at 10 billion to 25 billion dollars. They claim that they have discovered a "lost heir" to this fortune and offer persons bearing the name Drake or descended from persons of that name an opportunity to contribute to a fund which will be used in establishing the "lost heir's" title. Once that is established, they promise that everyone who has contributed to the fund will be repaid a thousandfold.

The fact is that Drake was never married, so he did not leave any heirs. Moreover, when he died aboard his ship in 1595 his estate was a very small one and that was settled long ago. Yet despite these well-known facts and despite repeated warnings by both the British and the American governments against anyone investing in such a scheme, thousands of gullible persons have been victimized in the past and it's only a question of time until the hoary old legend will be revived and other suckers will be taken in by it.

Flight Over the Atlantic

NEARLY three-quarters of a century before Charles A. Lindbergh thrilled the whole world by flying across the Atlantic, that feat was accomplished—in the imagination of an American newspaper man. His name was Edgar Allan Poe (later famous as a poet) and in 1835 he had printed the first installment of a fanciful tale about a trip to the moon. However, Richard Adams Locke's "moon hoax" in the New York Sun had monopolized public attention, so Poe tore up the second installment of his story.

But in 1844 when he wrote an account of the crossing of the Atlantic by a group of men in three days in a balloon or flying machine called the Victoria, he found that the public was just as gullible as it had been nine years earlier. His yarn, also published in the New York Sun, captured the imagination of the public and there was a great demand for copies of that paper.

Even when Poe explained that his tale was imaginary, many people insisted upon believing it was true. Later Poe said, "If the Victoria did not absolutely accomplish the voyage recorded, it will be difficult to assign a reason why she should not have accomplished it." In view of developments in aviation which were to come within the next 75 years, Poe was not such a bad prophet!

Can Spring Be Far Away?

WITH Winter almost over, March blizzards to the contrary notwithstanding, you find yourself eyeing the fashion sheets a little more than casually. Indeed you probably already have your needle threaded, just waiting for some nice Spring patterns to make your acquaintance. And here they are, three quick tricks, each pleasantly awaiting your choice, each designed to make some wardrobe happy. Which do you prefer?

Fitted Bodice.
Look your Sunday best in this graceful afternoon frock with its snug and softly shirred waistline. The skirt flares slightly to the front and emphasizes the slimmest of the silhouette. Note the saddle shoulder and short, puffed sleeves—details that are unusually becoming and make for distinction. One of the new widely spaced flower patterns in rayon or silk will make your informal afternoons and evening a double delight, and the pattern is a particular joy to work with. So simple, and so pleasing.

Trim Morning Frock.
Don't be caught around the house without your best foot forward. You needn't be, with this crisp and flattering morning frock at your beck and call. Simple as pie, yet charming fresh and youthful, this model dispenses with all fussy details yet achieves an appearance which will see you through the busiest day. The skirt flares a bit from a neatly fitted waistline, and the ric-rac trim, in contrast, adds a note of brightness. Just nine pieces including the belt and pockets. Try dotted swiss or a printed percale.

For the Full Figure.
This charming frock is really more than a house frock—you'll find it flattering enough and dressy enough to wear throughout the day. The slim, straight lines make every provision for comfort. The skirt has a kick pleat at front, the sleeves are full and pleated, and the neck line is just right to be very flattering. Furthermore you can make this dress, of a rayon print or gay percale, in a brief afternoon or evening, resulting in a pretty, runaround model at far less than you usually spend.

The Patterns.
Pattern 1450 is designed for sizes 12 to 20 (32 to 38 bust). Size 14 (32) requires 3 3/4 yards of 39 inch material with short sleeves. Fourteen inch zipper required for front closing.

Pattern 1312 is designed for sizes 14 to 44 (32 to 44 bust). Size 16 (34) requires 3 3/4 yards of 39 inch fabric; 1 3/4 yards braid required for trimming.

Pattern 1444 is designed for sizes 36 to 52. Size 38 requires 4 3/4 yards of 35 or 39 inch material; 1/2 yard required for revers facing in contrast. Bow requires 1/2 yard ribbon.

The Drawbacks

"Dear Mrs. Pucket," a school teacher wrote to the mother of a pupil, "William was absent this morning. Will you please tell me what kept him out of school?"

"Dear Ma'am," was the reply. "William is keeping time for his father. Last night he cum home with an exampel about how long would it take a man walking 3 miles an hour to walk two and a half times around a field 4 miles square. And as Willie ain't no man, we had to send his pap."
